Subject: Reminder of Academic Regulations

Importance: High

Good afternoon, all:

Further to my earlier email about registration, please make sure you register in accordance with the academic regulations for the faculty.

Please see the academic calendar and the course selection materials for the law school's academic requirements. A few of the most salient of them are included here as a reminder. Students are deemed to be aware of all faculty regulations and program requirements:

- No Time Conflicts. Students may not register for courses that conflict on the schedule in terms of time, even if the overlap is only half an hour.
- At Least One Paper Course per Year and Not More Than Two. Students must take at least one paper course in each of second and third year. Students may take two paper courses in each of second and third year, but not more than two paper courses in one year. It is permissible to take two paper courses in one term.
- Allowable Credit Ranges. Full time LL.B. students must take 29-31 credits per year (12-17 credits per term for third year students, and 12.5 - 17.5 credits per term for second year students due to the compulsory moot). You must ensure you are not registered for too many or too few credits. Registering for too few credits will affect your ability to advance or graduate; registering for too many will result in your being required to drop a course with a W (which may in turn result in your not having enough credits to advance). *Please note combined degree students and part time students have different requirements which can be found in the calendar.
- Only One Course Permitted With The Dal Legal Aid Clinic Students may not take more than one course at the same time (in the same term) as the Legal Aid Clinic.
- Competitive Moots. Students are permitted to participate in only one competitive moot during their LL.B. studies.
- Prerequisites. Students may only register for courses for which they have the stated prerequisites or co-requisites. Please see the course selection materials online for a complete list of pre- and co-requisites for courses offered this year:
http://law.dal.ca/Current_Students/Course_Selection_Materials/

Please note:

- A prerequisite must successfully be completed prior to commencing the course in question (i.e. either in the previous year or the previous term). If you do not have the necessary prerequisite, you must not register for the course in question.
 - A co-requisite must either successfully be completed prior to commencing the course in question OR must be, at the very least, taken concurrently with the course in question (i.e. in the same term, not in a later term). In this situation, unless you have already completed the course or are registered for it in the same term, you must not register for the course in question.
- Add/Drop Dates. Fall term and full year course selections must be complete by the add/drop date September 18, 2011. The exception is European Union Law; the last date to withdraw from that course is Wednesday, Sept. 14. Changes for Winter term courses may not be made after January 15, 2012. The online system will not accept any changes after these dates.
 - Required Courses
Please remember to sign up online for your compulsory courses first. The registration system requires registration in compulsory courses first, before it will permit students to register for electives. (For the purposes of the Dal.Online registration system, the major paper course is considered to be an elective.)

If you have any questions about these regulations, please contact this office.

Best regards,
